To the Editor :

I do not exactly appreciate the term " how to manage a husband." The word "manage" ould suggest that when a woman marries she then enters into a style of commercial husband's love" would be the proper title. When a woman marries she should marry the man she loves most, and if she will show her husband in actions as well as words that she eatecom him above all others, she can then retain his love. She cannot do it by act-ing mailferently towards him.

I believe a wife is as valuable an acquisi-tion to a man's happiness as a husband is to woman's; therefore, a husband should en-deavor to retain his wife's love as much so as a wife should retain her husband's.
